PROGRAM: Craig Wolverton - Pursuing a Better Investment Experience

Bain introduced Craig Wolverton, long-time Rotarian and financial adviser. Mr. Wolverton gave the club a number of tips on investing. He pointed out that, due to inflation, it would take $15 today to equal the purchasing power of one dollar in 1926. That same dollar invested in the stock market in 1926 would be worth $32,000 today. Index stocks seem to be the best option for the average investor. Some advice: Look beyond the headlines, focus on what you can control, avoid reactive investing and stay disciplined through the market ups and downs.
